WHEAT DROPS ELEVEN CENTS EARLY TODAY

Unusual Smash Marked Opening of Market This Morning

BULLETIN

By Associated Press Leased Wire

Winnipeg, March 17—Wheat prices on the local exchange continued their sensational decline today. May futures at 1.53 1-2 collapsing 18 cents before noon.

BULLETIN

By Associated Press Leased Wire

Winnipeg, March 17.—With a crash which sent the wheat market into a state of complete disorganization today, prices dropped 13½c within ten minutes. May went down to $1.59 on the extreme bulge while July underwent an even more serious loss, 14¼c.

By Associated Press Leased Wire

Chicago, March 17—Wheat smashed down excitedly today 11 cents a bushel as soon as the market opened here. May touched 1.54 as compared with 1.64½@1.65 at the finish yesterday. Heavy selling to stop losses was in progress.

A big drop at Liverpool over night had preceded the collapse here and had contributed to the acute weakness. A semi-panic in the Chicago wheat trade yesterday on account of a temporary stoppage of buying was also a depressing factor.

So wild were the fluctuations in wheat prices that trades at the same moment in different parts of the pit were as much as six cents apart, May wheat in the first dealings ranged from 1.54 to 1.60.

Other Grains Affected

Tumbling down in prices spread to other grains, especially corn and rye. Rye fell 11 cents to $1.13 for May delivery. Corn dropped 5c in some cases. May off nearly 4c at 1.15.

New low price records for the season were reached by all deliveries of oats and by deliveries of rye. Oats suffered an extreme setback of 6c a bushel, July and May going as low at 41c.

Wheat oscilated swiftly meanwhile at the rate of ½c between trades. Rallies of about 2c a bushel from bottom figures followed the opening, but failed to last, and the market continued for a considerable period to center chiefly at but one cent above the initial low level.

The best recovery in wheat prices up to noon was 4c a bushel, May reacting 1.55 to 1.51. This rally was in connection with signs that at least some export buying had been done today on the various breaks in price.

At the worst of the earlier slashes in price today, the wheat market showed more than 35c a bushel loss as against the high point last week and 52c loss compared with 2.05⅞, the top on Jan. 28. Simultaneously May corn was down today about 16c from last week's top figures.

Fresh waves of selling later swept the wheat market to 3c below the opening figures and whirled the May delivery down to 1.51. This was a total break of 14c a bushel since yesterday's finish.

FALL'S SON-IN-LAW MUST TELL OF BANK BONDS

Government Wins Its Contention in Teapot Dome Trial

By Associated Press Leased Wire

Cheyenne, Wyo., March 17— Federal Judge Kennedy ruled today in the Teapot Dome naval oil lease annulment suit that M. T. Everhart, Pueblo, Colo., banker and son-in-law of former Interior Secretary A. B. Fall, must testify as to alleged deposits he made of Liberty bonds to Fall's bank credit.

Everhart yesterday refused to testify on the alleged bond transaction on grounds he might incriminate himself. The bonds are reported to have been placed to Fall's credit by Harry F. Sinclair, whose Mammoth Oil Company leased the Teapot Dome reserve.

The ruling forms a new basis upon which government counsel will attempt to prove charges of collusion and fraud in the lease.

AMBASSADOR TO GERMANY

By Associated Press Leased Wire

Washington, March 17—Jacob Gould Schurman, now minister to China, was named today by President Coolidge as ambassador to Germany.

Mr. Schurman will take the place of Ambassador Houghton, recently transferred from Berlin to London.

Before Mr. Schurman entered the diplomatic service, he was President of Cornell University.

Years ago he served as minister to Greece. He was born in Canada and naturalized in New York in 1892.

MOVES HERE FROM STERLING

WARREN DIDN'T WANT JOB IN SENATE'S RECESS

John G. Sargent Picked by Coolidge; Name Given Senate

By Associated Press Leased Wire

Washington, March 17—John G. Sargent of Vermont was nominated today by President Coolidge to be attorney general.

In the first few minutes of its session the Senate adopted a resolution to notify the President it had no further business to transact, and named Senator Curtis and Robinson a committee to convey the notification to the White House.

The name of Mr. Sargent was sent to the Capitol after Charles B. Warren, twice rejected by the Senate, had declined to take a recess appointment to the attorney generalship, and after Senate leaders had assured the White House there was fair prospect of quick approval of the new nominee.

As in the case of former Attorney General Stone, President Coolidge drew from among his close personal acquaintances in selecting Mr. Sargent.

The nominee has spent his life in Vermont, living most of the time at Ludlow where Mr. Coolidge as a boy attended an academy. He and the President have been friends for years.

Mr. Sargent is a former attorney general of the state and is characterized by his friends as "the best lawyer in New England."

He is 64 years old.

Coincident with the sending of Mr. Sargent's name to the Senate, the White House made public an exchange of correspondence between the President and Mr. Warren. Mr. Coolidge's letter renewed his offer of a recess appointment, and Mr. Warren's was the declination on the ground that his acceptance would prolong the controversy.

As soon as the new nomination reached the Senate chamber, it was refered to the judiciary committee.

The situation had been canvassed in advance by the President in a conference with Senators Curtis and Robinson, republican and democrat floor leaders, and Mr. Coolidge had told them he did not wish to submit a new appointee to such an ordeal as that dealt out by the senate to Mr. Warren. They agreed that such a prospect was unlikely.

Mr. Sargent received his education at Tufts College and was admitted to the bar in 1890. After serving as states attorney he was elected attorney general of Vermont on the republican ticket, serving from 1908 to 1912. Since then he has engaged in general practice.

RICE'S HOTEL AT ELGIN READY TO OCCUPY MAY 30

Former Dixon Man Will Manage Fine Modern Hostelry

Accompanying a fine picture of Elgin's new hotel, which is being built by M. E. Rice, former landlord of the Nachusa Tavern of Dixon, the Elgin Daily News says:

Elgin's dream of a new hotel will become a reality on May 30, when "The Fox", the new hostlery at Douglas Avenue and Division street, will be formally opened to the public.

With contractors working overtime announcement was made Friday that the hotel will be completed and ready for opening Memorial Day. The building is a four-story, brick and concrete structure, being erected at a cost of $265,000. It will be fireproof throughout.

In their efforts to further beautify the immediate vicinity of the hotel, backers of the project have already been successful in having telephone poles removed from along the west side of the structure.

Seven store spaces, the hotel lobby, Manager's office, check room, main dining rooms, and wash rooms for men and women will be located on the first floor.

There will be 116 sleeping rooms, sixty-five of which will be provided with private baths. The management's quarters will be located on the second floor.

The hotel will be under the management of Milton E. Rice, who, with a number of Elgin business and professional men, are behind the project.

Sellers officiating, and with burial in the Brethren cemetery in Pine Creek township, Ogle county.

The Ladies of the G. A. R., Dixon Circle No. 73, will hold their flag service at the service at the house at 10 o'clock.

FIRST UNIT NEW HYDRO PLANT IN OPERATION TODAY

Ninety Tons of Steel and Iron Propelled by Fall of Water

The first unit of the Illinois Northern Utilities company's new hydro plant, the largest head water plant in the world, started operating yesterday afternoon at 3:30, a half hour after the water had been turned into the pool. The first unit was operated for an hour, when it was shut off until 9:30 this morning. The water was again turned on and the big turbine will continue to operate night and day until the drying out process has been completed, which may require from three to ten days. At the conclusion of this time, the big unit will begin generating electrical energy with a capacity of 800 kilowat volt amperes, which represent one of the largest single units in the country.

The coffer dam which has held out the water since early last summer, was removed yesterday allowing the water to flow into the head water pool and thence through the pit turning the big turbine. It is interesting to note that the single unit represents an approximate weight of 90 tons which is propelled by the force of the water passing through the pit.

Work on Second Unit.

It is expected that the second unit will be ready in about two weeks when it will be given its trial operation. From that time it will require, under normal conditions, it is said, about three weeks, intervening until all of the five units are in operation. Each of the turbines represents a gross weight of approximately 90 tons and when completed early in the summer, the water of Rock river will be propelling turbines and generators representing 4,500 tons of machinery in the new hydro plant.

An enormous electric sign 100 feet in length has been received and will be placed on top of the plant as soon as the roof is completed. The sign will run lenghtwise of the building and will spell out in letters three feet in height, "Illinois Utilities Company, Station No. 6." The work on the building is being rushed to completion as rapidly as possible with a view of having the plant in full operation early this summer.

Scarlet Fever Has Been Found at Knox

By Associated Press Leased Wire

Galesburg, Ill., March 17—Appearance of a case of scarlet fever in Whiting Hall, Knox College dormitory housing 150 co-eds, and the quarantining of the home of one of the members of the Galesburg high school basketball team are the latest developments in the spread of the epidemic here. Miss Marian Sandahl of Genoa, Neb., is the Knox girl who was found to have the disease. She has been isolated in her room at the dormitory. Warren Smith, who played on the Galesburg team in the tournament at Peoria Friday night, was taken sick when he returned here Sunday and the home has been quarantined. Six Knox students who are under quarantine in the men's dormitory are reported as recovering.

Dr. E. B. Wing, city health commissioner, says the schools will not be closed. All the cases are in such light form that this step is not necessary, he says.

Ice Will be Higher in Price this Summer

Ward Miller, John Fellows and Sam Watson of the Dixon Pure Ice company have disposed of their interests in the firm to E. H. Prince of the Dixon Distilled Water Ice company it was announced this morning. At the same time, an announcement was made that the price of ice this year would be higher than last year. The frozen luxury last season was sold to the retail trade at a rate of $11 per ton and this year the price is $12.

Words Should Fit

Words are often like clothes—either too large or too small. When they do not express the thoughts they are ill fitting, and cannot have the approval of those who hear or read them.

This is often noticed in everyday conversation. Everybody should choose words with care—not too big, like dad's coat on little Willie; nor too small, like daughter's blouse on mother.

A person that uses words which do not convey the exact meaning, intended, loses the force of an idea that might have accomplished much had the meaning been plain.

Those who learn to use a dictionary will be surprised at the rapidity with which they advance in learning the most expressive words to use. And the ideal volume for that purpose is the New Universities Dictionary which is now being distributed to newspaper readers on the coupon plan.

Clip that coupon from another page of this issue and learn how to get this new and useful volume.

Comparative Cost of Community H. S. and Present School

13. Q. How much will it increase taxes?

A. While the law permits a tax of $2.75 the rate actually assessed for the operation of both grade and high schols in Dixon is $2.22 on the assessed valuation.

This pays running expenses of both and also is paying off a small balance of bonded indebtedness for the present high school building.

Assuming that it will cost more to operate a modern high school as it should be operated, than does the present high school, it stands to reason that the community high school tax, which is spread over the entire new district, and does not in any way contribute to the support of the grade schools, will be less than if the district were smaller.

The Board of Education has given careful consideration in estimating the amount necessary to operate the new community high school, making allowances to pay $20,000 annually on bonds and to pay all interest charges, and making very liberal allowances on all operating items, reaching a total figure of $102,575.

The assessed valuation of the proposed new community high school district is $8,222,000.

A tax rate of $1.24 on the above assessed valuation meets the required amount of $102,575.

To those residing out of the present District No. 170 and inside the proposed new community high school territory, to determine what your community high school tax will be—take the tax sheet received from the County Treasurers' office, take the sum found in the column headed "Equalized Valuation," multiply this sum by $1.24, the estimated new high schol tax rate, as shown above. The result will be your total high school tax under the new system.

To find the increased expense take the same equalized valuation and multiply by 39.8 cents, this being the present tax you are now paying for non-high tax and as under the new system you will not pay a non-high school tax, deduct the last figure from the community high school tax and the result is the sum of the increased tax.

Illustration figured on the basis of your "Equalized Valuation," being in the sum of $1,000.

$8.42—Increased tax on $1,000 Equalized Valuation, due to community high school will be 84 cents.
Or—
Increased tax on $100 Equalized Valuation due to community high school will be 84 cents.
Taxes in the teritory now known as District No. 170 will be increased to a less extent than in the newly added territory because District No. 170 is already taxed to operate the present high school.

VICE PRESIDENT HULL OF CENTRAL RAILROAD IS DEAD

H. B. Hull Passed Away Unexpectedly in San Antonio

By Associated Press Leased Wire

Chicago, Mar. 17—H. B. Hull, vice president of the Illinois Central Railroad died early today at San Antonio, Texas, according to a telegram received at his home here. He had gone to San Antonio with Mrs. Hull, who had been ill for some time.

He had been vice president slightly more than four months. The telegram did not state the cause of death. It is indicated that Mrs. Hull planned to arrive in Chicago Thursday. Burial will be in Chicago.

Mr. Hull leaves besides his wife, one daughter, Mrs. T. B. Wagner, of Chicago.

He was 55 years old. His birthplace was Osage County, Missouri. He was employed several years in newspaper work by the Morning Journal of Hannibal, Mo.

Mr. Hull entered railroad service in 1896 at St. Louis, Mo., as a clerk in the passenger department of the Chicago, Burlington, Quincy. He became attached to the Illinois Central in November, 1898 as a claim agent at Macomb.

Mr. Hull became assistant to the president Nov. 1, 1921 and vice president, Nov. 1, 1924.

INOCULATION INSTRUCTION ALSO CHARGED

Bacteriologist Alleges Shepherd Asked for Fatal Cultures

By Associated Press Leased Wire

Chicago, Mar. 17—Typhoid fever germs which killed William N. McClintock, "millionaire orphan," were given William D. Shepherd, foster father and chief heir, upon his promise to pay $100,000 after settlement of the estate, C. C. Faiman, head of a school of bacteriology, told Robert E. Crowe, State's Attorney, today.

The amount was decided upon, Faiman said, after he first had demanded a quarter of a million dollars reduced the amount to $200,000 and finally compromised upon a promise of $100,000 after numerous conferences with Shepherd.

Approximately a dozen conferences were recounted in Faiman's statement and brought his association with Shepherd up to a time after McClintock's death.

Had "Coached" Shepherd

Faiman's statement did not incriminate Shepherd in the actual manner of administering the germs, but said the school head had coached Shepherd along that line.

Faiman's statement, as announced by the states attorney, said Shepherd kept alive the germs in three test tubes he received originally for a period of four or five months.

Inoculation of McClintock with tuberculosis germs was discussed but abandoned, Faiman said, because the disease would develop too slowly. Diphtheria inoculation was abandoned, Faiman said, because it perhaps would not work satisfactorily in an adult.

After typhoid fever was developed in young McClintock, Faiman said, Shepherd was anxious because a doctor had been called. However, Faiman said, he reassured Shepherd by telling him that should the physician administer vaccine it would not counteract the baccili if the case were fairly well developed.

Discussed Administration

At a meeting in a downtown hotel in September, 1924, Faiman's statement said, "We discussed especially the methods of administering the typhoid cultures. We also talked about 'Billy' and Shepherd said it was about time he made his will, and also about time to dispose of him. He said it was up to him entirely as how the will was to be made, and that $1,000,000.

Shepherd said he would take care of Miss Isabelle Pope, the youth's fiancee, said Faiman, "because he just thought it would be best."

"Did he ever mention how the witnesses signed the will, or if undue influence was used to make McClintock sign?" Faiman was asked.

"He told me that whatever he said would be all right," the bacteriology teacher answered.

He next saw Shepherd in November, 1924, Faiman said, when "he came to my office and told me the big proposition was in progress."

It was at that time, Faiman said, that Shepherdl searched through the school letter file and regained a letter he had written regarding a course of study there.

When Shepherd took the letter, Faiman said, he began to speculate on just where he "came in."

Shepherd told him the plan was working and that Raiman should not worry, the teacher said.

Asked One-Fourth

Asked what he wanted, Faiman said, he replied he was entitled to one-fourth of the deal.

After a bit of quibbling they decided "the success of the proposition" was worth $100,000 to Faiman, he said. Young McClintock died December 4, 1924. After Christmas, Shepherd telephoned Faiman, the latter said, "things were getting hot." Faiman said he again calmed Shepherd's fears.

Faiman said his school received numerous telephone calls in which he was warned to "mind his own business'."

Faiman was present under guard when his statement was read by a shorthand reporter to three assistant state's attorneys and newspapermen.

He grinned at times.

After the reading Faiman was taken to a restaurant and later permitted to rest.

This and other statements by Faiman that he had given typhoid germs to Shepherd and knew they were intended for the "millionaire orphan", guided States Attorneys in their efforts to obtain a murder indictment today from the grand jury investigating McClintock's death last December.

The development came last night when Faiman shook his finger in Shepherd's face and said:

"Gave Germs to Shepherd"

"I gave those typhoid germs to Shepherd. He told me in plain words that he wanted them 'to inoculate somebody with and that it was a million dollar deal. He told me he would pay me plenty when he got the million."

"You're a liar," Shepherd retorted. He maintained to State's Attorney Crowe that he had never seen Faiman before.

Shepherd issued a formal statement in which he asserted that he saw as the only possible reason for the investigation, "to break the will in which McClintock left me his estate."

Shepherd's plea for admission to probate of the will which left him the $1,000,000 McClintock fortune with

MAY SUCCEED "RABBIT"
By Associated Press Leased Wire

Chicago, March 17—The gloom that fell on the Chicago Cubs camp on Catalina Island when "Rabbit" Maranville, late of Pittsburgh, broke his ankle, was partly dispelled today when Ted Baldwin, third baseman of the Seattle, Pacific Coast League, club, was reported ready to try for the berth made vacant by the injury.

Should Baldwin make good, Wade Killefer, manager of the Seattle club and brother of Bill Killefer, pilot of the Cubs, will receive several players.

The Cubs today entertained the Salt Lake City team of the Coast League, with a second game carded for tomorrow. Thursday the Cubs quit the island for good this season.

Rain brought out the crossword puzzle experts in the White Sox camp at Shreveport. Meanwhile Manager Collins considered which three or four of his squad will get releases later in the week. Harry Hooper, veteran outfielder, was an arrival from California.

BRAVES BEAT JANKEES
By Associated Press Leased Wire

New York, March 17—Babe Ruth's chipped finger failed to play its part yesterday at St. Petersburg against the Braves of the National League and two mere singles resulted, the Yanks falling before the Braves 6-1. Marquard permitted but two hits during his three inning sentence and Graham and Genewich held the Yanks in check thereafter.

The Giants fell before Indianapolis 7-3, Bob Steele finishing the game for the Indiana.

Meantime Brooklyn brought the only joy to greater New York, subduing the Phillies 12-9 with Fournier, Brown and Cox leading the attack.

McGRAW IS SATISFIED

Sarasota, Fla., March 17—(By The Associated Press)—John McGraw, veteran manager of the New York Giants, has concluded that the team he will lead into the 1925 pennant race is a "good young club" and that it has plenty of reserve strength.

"I have some good looking youngsters," McGraw said today, "but just how good I am not yet ready to say. "My outfield is not working yet. Wilson has a charley horse, Meusel has just reported, George Kelly's father died recently and he has not turned up yet.

"Maun and Dean both look better than last year. I believe Greenfield will make a good pitcher and Frank Walker has done well in practice.

"All the regulars have reported in excellent condition. Bentley is already down to within a few pounds of his proper pitching weight."

SENATORS FORCED TO FIGHT
By Associated Press Leased Wire

Washington, March 17 Manager Harris planned to give two of his winning slabmen of last year their first test in actual competition this season in the game today with the Boston Braves at St. Petersburg. Word from the Tampa camp had it that Mogridge and Ogden would both take a hand in the effort to square accounts with the Braves who won the first game last week.

The Senators were forced to fight for their 6 to 4 victory over the Columbus American Association outfit yesterday, Marberry's wildness giving the opposition most of their opportunities for scoring.

PIRATE SECONDS WIN
By Associated Press Leased Wire

Pittsburgh, Pa., March 17—The Pirate second team yesterday beat the regulars for the second time at Paso Robles, California, the score was 11-6.

ATHLETICS MEET GIANTS
By Associated Press Leased Wire

Philadelphia, Pa., March 17—Connie Mack's Athletics are to meet the New York Giants today in Sarasota. The Athletics yesterday shut out Buffalo 4-0.

The Philadelphia Nationals, defeated yesterday by Brooklyn, are to have only batting and fielding workout today at Bradentown, Fla.

RED SOX REJOICE
By Associated Press Leased Wire

Boston, Mass., March 17—Ira Flagstead arrived yesterday in New Orleans and there was rejoicing in the Red Sox camp. The squad is now complete with the exception of Bill Wamby, second baseman, who has not been hear from since the team arrived. Connolly, the youngster from Berkeley, California, continues a sensation.

PILLETTE INEFFECTIVE

Detroit, Mich., March 17—Herman Pillette, star of the Detroit pitching staff two years ago but ineffective until the final game of the season last year, proved ineffective again yesterday when the Yannigans lost their first ball game of the year 9-0.

While Pillette was being hammered, Bill Moore and White Hill were pitching shutout ball for the regulars.

Louisiana Derby Starts at New Orleans this P. M.

By Associated Press Leased Wire

New Orleans, La., Mar. 17—The fourth annual Louisiana Derby, carrying an added purse of $17,500, in which eleven starters, all nominated for the Kentucky Derby, were to test their speed, opened today in the feature race in the closing of the annual spring meeting at Jefferson Park track.

Women's Indoor Singles Tennis Tourney is Begun

By Associated Press Leased Wire

Brookline, Mass., Mar. 17—Play will be continued today in the competition for the womens national indoor singles tennis championship at the Longwood Covered courts here.

Among matches scheduled in the opening round of the women's national indoor doubles, is that of Miss Edith Sigourney and Miss Mayme Mac Donald against Miss Anne Townsend and Miss Louise Dixon.

In the mixed doubles play which starts tomorrow, 23 teams will vie for the national title which William T. Tilden and Mrs. George W. Whightman won last year.

Willis and Gibbons Likely to be Matched for a Bout

By Associated Press Leased Wire

New York, Mar. 17—The statement of Jack Kearns, manager of Jack Dempsey, that the champion will not be ready for a title engagement until September, has led to consideration of a meeting between Harry Wills and Tommy Gibbons at the Milk Fund bouts, May 29.

Paddy Mullins, manager of Wills conferred with Tex Rickard and it was agreed that such a match would prove profitable if the champion could not be persuaded to risk his crown at that time.

Boxing followers expect trouble over Kearns' suggestion that no more than $50,000 be paid the challenger when Dempsey goes into action, basing his argument on the fact that Jack obtained his title by fighting for $27,500 at Toledo against Willard in 1919.

Nurmi May Be Suspended for Failing to Make Race

By Associated Press Leased Wire

New York, Mar. 17—Paavo Nurmi today faces possible suspension by the Connecticut registration committee for his failure to appear at a meet in Hartford Saturday night.

If he clears this barrier he will dun tonight in two middle distance races against America's fastest men at each distance.

The first event, 5,000 meters, will pit him against Willie Ritola, native of Finland, but an adopted son of the United States. Then Nurmi will face Joey Ray. Lloyd Hahn native of Nebraska, but member of the Boston Athletic Association, also will be in the event.

An official is in New York for the purpose of making a full investigation in regard to Nurmi's reported illness.

Should the Connecticut association vote suspension before tonight's races there will be no time for a telegraphic vote.

St. Patrick Known to All For Banishing Snakes

Everyone has heard of St. Patrick, if for no other reason than because of the story that he drove all snakes out of Ireland.

It is believed that the patron saint of Ireland was born about the year 389 yet widely varying views have been held by modern scholars as to the exact year of his birth and the year of his death.

Pope Leo XIII gave his approbation to the following story of St. Patrick's life:

St. Patrick was born toward the close of the fourth century in a village called Bonaven Tabernaiae, which seems to be the town of Kilpatrick, on the mouth of the River Clyde, in Scotland, between Dumbarton and Glasgow.

He was said to be a Briton and a Roman, or a mixed extraction. His father was of the family name Calphurnius.

In his sixteenth year he was carried into captivity by barbarians who took him to Ireland, where for six months he served as a slave in watching cattle on the mountain sides.

He fled and obtained passage on a ship heading toward his home, but the ship was forced to land and for 27 days he wandered through a desert country.

St. Patrick continued his traveling, going to Gaul and Italy, where he received apostolic benediction from Pope Celestine.

He returned to Ireland to preach the gospel. He traveled over the whole island, penetrating into the remotest corners. He ordained clergy, established schools and colleges and monasteries.

Many legends, which do not appear in the story approved by Pope Leo, have been related.

The most popular legend is that which gives him credit for driving all the snakes and vermin out of Ireland.

It seems that St. Patrick, whereever he went, was always preceded by a drum, to attract the people. Just before going up the hill to preach the sermon that was to finish the snakes the drum was beaten so vigorously it burst.

A great multitude had gathered and the people were horror stricken when a large clacg snake, with jaws extending, was seen gliding toward St. Patrick.

But, as the story goes, an angel came down from heaven, patched the drum, the sermon proceeded and all the reptiles vanished as if by magic.

Healo, the best foot powder will give aching tired feet relief. Ask your druggist for a box. tf

An old document recently found at Belgrade says that the first successful glider flight was made at Foca, Belgium, in 1549.

IS YOUR CHILD THIN AND WEAK?

In just a few days—quicker than you ever dreamt of —these wonderful health building, flesh making tablets called McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound tablets will start to help any thin, underweight little one.

After sickness and where rickets are suspected they are especially valuable. No need to give them any more nasty Cod Liver Oil—these tablets are made to take the place of that good, but evil smelling, stomach upsetting medicine and they surely do it.

A very sickly child, age 9, gained 12 pounds in 7 months.

Ask Rowland's Pharmacy, Dixon and Rochelle or any druggist for McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets—the original and genuine—as easy to take as candy and 60 tablets 60 cents.—Adv.

DAYS DIVINE—

Back o'er the past, through dear Memory's highways,
Fondly I roam to the days when a lad;
Plucking the blossoms which grew in the byways,
Blithesome ones crowding out those which look sad.
Scanning the faces of friends long departed,
Holding once more their true hands within mine;
Loit'ring in places where life for me started;
Childhood days; wildwood days;—days most divine.

Down 'long the stream where the whippoorwill calls me,
There do I wander with her by my side;
Living again where love's sweet smile enthralls me,
Timidly hoping that she'll be my bride.
Breathlessly 'waiting her answer and asking.
Heaven to bless me by making her mine;
There in the light of her eyes I am basking;
Meeting days; fleeting days;—days most divine.

E'en though the future bring wealth and fame to me,
I'll never forget those old days of the past.
No days will ever be quite the same to me,
Days when we vowed we'd be true to the last.
Though cheeks have faded and eyes lost their gleaming,
Long may my mem'ries with her love entwine.
Boyhood days; joyhood days;—days most divine.

Jas. M. Woodman.

COSMETICS NOW PARKED IN UMBRELLA—

London. — Umbrellas with handles flat as pan cakes have appeared in London and are considered quite the thing among fashionably dressed young women.

The umbrellas are altogether too unwieldly to be carried by the handle, so are attached to the arm by means of a heavy silk cord. But they have the advantage of doing away with the vanity case, for within the flat handle the owner carries her powder box, lip stick, eye lash crayon, a dainty little box of perfume, a three-inch comb, a mirror, and enough hair pins to last her several hours.

Menus for a Family
Tested by SISTER MARY

Breakfast—Stewed rhubard, country sausage, creamed potatoes, flannel cakes, maple sirup, coffee.

Luncheon—Potato and oyster pie, lettuce sandwiches, honey oatmeal cookies, milk, tea.

Dinner— Boiled mutton, caper sauce, steamed brown rice, mashed turnips, grapefruit salad, queen of puddings, milk, coffee, bran rolls.

A poached egg on crisp whole wheat toast creamed potatoes, stewed rhubarb and a glass of milk should be provided for the breakfast of chidren under school age who appear at the family table. The sausage and cakes are all very well for the grown-ups who need a hearty breakfast, but are not for office workers or childen under six or eight years of age.

Flannel cakes are good served as a luncheon dish some Saturday when the entire family is at home.

Flannel Cakes

Two cups hot milk, 2 cups cold milk, 2 tablespoons butter, 4 eggs, 1 teaspoon salt, ½ cake compressed yeast.

Melt butter in hot milk and add cold milk. Beat yolks of eggs until thick and add to mixture. Dissolve yeast cake in ¼ cup lukewarm water Add salt and dissolved yeast to mixture. Stir in enough flour to make a stiff batter. Put in a warm place to rise over night. In the morning fold in the whites of the eggs beaten until stiff and dry. Drop from the spoon onto a hot well greased griddel. Brown on one side and turn and brown on the other. Serve as soon as baked.

Queen of Puddings

One cup milk, 1 tablespoon butter, 1 cup bread crumbs from the soft part of the loaf, 2 eggs, 4 tablespoons sugar, grated rind 1 lemon, 3 tablespons strawberry jam, ¼ teaspoon salt.

Scalt milk and add butter. Pour over bread crumbs. Beat yolks of eggs well and add with the grated rind and sugar to crumbs and milk. Beat well and pour mixture into a well buttered baking dish. Bake in a moderate oven until set, about twenty minutes. Remove from the oven, spread with jam and cover with the whites of the eggs beaten until stiff and dry with 4 tablespoons sugar. Return to the oven for eight minutes to brown and cook the meringue.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Nichols last evening entertained a few friends at dinner, followed by bridge.

Most of the houses in Bulgarian villages are made of mud or wood and rubble work, giving them an oriental appearance.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS—

Upholstered Furniture.

Upholstered furniture should be dusted with a brush and wiped with an old silk duster.

Corned Beef Hint.

Corned beef and ham to be served cold are greatly improved in flavor if you allow them to cook in the water in which they were boiled.

Never Boil.

Salt fish should never be boiled.

Soak Eight Hours.

Dried peas and beans should be soaked in cold water for at least eight hours, then rinsed in fresh water and put to cook in cold water.

Household Saving.

The fat from bacon, ham and sausage may be used instead of butter for meat vegetable sauces.

Keep Windows Lowered.

When cooking or laundrying is going on in the kitchen the windows should be let down from the top. This keeps the air pure and the odor sdo not escape into other parts of the house.

Importance Religious Education of Children

Chicago.—Women's clubs, business men's club, chambers of commerce, parent-teachers' associations, farm organizations and all other civic and community interests will be asked to co-operate with the Illinois Sunday school association in stressing the importance of religious education for children, during the week of May 3 to May 10. Practically every state and community of the United States will observe that week as children's week and will devote the week to arousing interest in the religious education of boys and girls.

"The importance of such education for children cannot be over-estimated," said Miss Peal L. Weaver, superintendent of the children's division of the Illinois Sunday school association. "For every child enrolled in some Sunday school, Catholic, Jewish and Protestant, there are approximately two are receiving no religious training.

"Supreme Court Justice Louis L. Fawcett of Brooklyn, stated that in eighteen years more than 4,000 boys had been arraigned before him and that of these only four were members of a Sunday school at the time of the commission of the crime. Of these three cases were technical and scarcely worth mentioning as crimes. He added, "If we could keep the youth of America in Sunday school during the period of character formation, or at regular attendance at some religious worship, we could close the criminal courts and the jails."

The subject is to be presented this year, to all types of civic, community and business clubs through members of the clubs. In this manner the Illinois Sunday School association hopes to reach every home in the state and arouse enthusiasm for Sunday school training of some kind.

Wells-Grover Wedding Celebrated

A marriage of much interest to Dixon friends is that of Donald Harned Grover, son of City Clerk and Mrs. Blake Grover, and Miss Emmogene Frances Wells, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Wells of South Dixon.

The young couple were married at Clinton, Iowa, Monday afternoon, March 16th ,at 3:30 o'clock, at the parsonage to the Methodist Episcopal church, by the pastor, Rev. E. C. Hunt. They were unattended.

Both young people are popular and highly esteemed in a large circle of friends who hasten to extend their congratulations and best wishes to the happy pair who have returned to Dixon where the young bridegroom is a most efficient employee in the meter department of the Illinois Northern Utilities Co. in this city. He is a most likeable and progressive young man whose friends are legion. His bride is a bost attractive young woman and her friends congratulate her husband and join in wishing them happiness.

Mrs. Allen to Read "Barabbas"

Anent the readling to be given at the Presbyterian church, this city, next Sunday evening (the 22nd), we quote the following from Phoenixville, Pa., paper:

"Mrs. Ira N. Allen, of Oakland, Cal., who recently gave her reading of Corelli's "Barabbas," in Central Lutheran church, will render it in the Woodland Heights Presbyterian church, New York City, on March 15th, and in two churches in Chicago, March 19th and 20th.

"From there she will go to Dixon, Ill., and give it there. In the college at that city she was Dean of Oratory and Dramatic Art for five years.

"Mrs. Allen is a graduate and former teacher of Neff College of Oratory, Philadelphia. She is known best in these parts by her maiden name, Mable Friday, and lived near Wilmer.

"Her talent, training and tact make her among the best dramatists in America. She will repeat Corelli's "Barabbas," at the Reformed church on next Monday at 8 o'clock. Get the book from the Library and read it; then you will understand its interpretation better."

Dixon Elks and Ladies to Oregon

Fellowship of Prayer

Daily Lenten Bible reading and meditation prepared for Commission on Evangelism of Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America.

TUESDAY

The Great Fundamental

Read Lk. 8: 22-25. Text: 8:25. And he said unto them, Where is your faith?

MEDITATION—Jesus did not so much consider the little things of character as he did those essential to full spiritual manhood. Steadfast faith was one essential.

"The highest security against temptation lies in the steady development of an affirmative life. The final aim in life is to be something rather than to avoid or to escape something ..... The best form of defense lies in spiritual attack. If we walk in the grip of some splendid, far-reaching purpose, we shall put down temptation under our feet. We are in the conqueror's path if we walk in the Spirit; we shall then walk secure from attack."

In what is your faith? Is it in material things, machinery, wealth, position, health? Let us guard against absorption in these things. "Have faith in God." Put first things first.

PRAYER—Eternal God, we pray thee to make our lives centers of living faith. Let there be an outflow from our hearts that will cause men to turn their thoughts to thee. May we put our faith in things everlasting. Amen.

Episcopal Bishop of Indiana Died Yesterday

By Associated Press Leased Wire

South Bend, Ind., March 17—The Right Rev. James H. White, 76, bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Northern Indiana, who died yesterday in Florida, will be buried from St. James church here, it was announced today. The body was enroute to South Bend today.

Bishop White, who served as rector of St. James church without compensation because of the financial condition of the church, recently was forced to give up much of his work because of failing health. Heart disease is said to have caused his death.

The Rev. Campbell Gray of Peoria, co-adjutor by the conference to assist the aged prelate in his work. Bishop White was consecrated at Indianapolis in 1895. He is survived by his widow, 3 sons and 2 daughters.

SPENDING AND PAYING.

An exchange brings the story of a taxpayer who recently got some publicity when he sought to prove that his farm tax was extraordinarily high. While every one feels the pinch of taxation now, not all of the increase can be shown to have caused a disproportionate raise compared with what taxes were in the "old days," say in 1846, and with conditions and real values as they existed then.

This farmer paid $185 farm tax, which would have caused his great-grandfather to have probably a fatal attack of heart failure. Along with the receipt of his $185 tax, he produced a receipt showing that his great-grandfather had paid only $7.89 taxes on the same farm. It was with a hurt air as of one robbed that he produced these two receipts.

But it is pointed out that going to town to pay his taxes he drove a car that cost more than the farm was worth in 1846, and he traveled over a road a mile of which cost more than the entire annual running expenses of the county in 1846. He drove by a free public school and high school. He had children in both of them and a son at the state university. None of these schools was in existence in his great-grand father's time. He had a daily paper which had been delivered to his house that morning. The best his great-grandfather could do was a weekly printed sixty miles away, and for which he drove six miles in summer and rode and swam a horse six miles most of the rest of the time.

The taxpayer accepted every one of these improvements as if it were absolutely necessary to the barest sort of existence. His complaint, therefore, was not against high taxes, but against the battle within him between the loafer who cannot resist a scheme to ease life, and the worker who hates to humor the loafer. He's the average taxpayer, a good buyer but poor payer.

THE SPANISH PRISONER.

The famous "Spanish Prisoner" is reported to be a real prisoner at last. After a police hunt lasting for half a century, Gen. Ramon de Santa Clara, alias Rafael de Santos, alias "R. de S.", has been jailed in Madrid and accused of the most remarkable and persevering hoax in criminal history. Any American of mature years may consider himself snubbed and aggrieved if he has not received, at some time or other, a letter purporting to come from a prisoner in Spain, complaining of unjust imprisonment and offering to share a fortune with the recipient for a little cash to set him free. Thousands of Americans, and thousands of men and women in other countries, have fallen for that ancient fraud. But there was always a new crop of victims arising, and always some way to evade the postal laws and the police.

The man now arrested in Medrid poses as bankrupt, but is said to have a fortune of $360,000 in American money concealed somewhere. If he is the real culprit, he should have millions.

Merely locking him up, however, will probably do little good. After a short rest from the hoary fraud, out of respect to the present publicity, some other individual or gang may be expected to take it up and fish for moneyed easy marks again, with the usual success.

It isn't any worse than a lot of our American "blue sky" enterprises, at that, though a bit more romantic.

AMERICAN EAGLE OUTLAWED.

The eagle, our "bird of freedom," is an outlaw up in Alaska. Some seven years ago the Alaska legislature passed an act providing a bounty of 50 cents for every eagle killed in the territory. This was at the behest of fishermen, who claimed that the eagle's extraordinary appetite for salmon was ruining the fishing. In 1923 more than 18,000 bounties had been claimed. To receive a bounty it is necessary for the applicant to produce the two feet of the eagle killed. A large number of the birds after having been shot fell in inaccessible places, so that the feet could not be obtained. Consequently it is estimated that at least 25,000 eagles were killed in 1923.

This bounty law was hurriedly passed and no opportunity was given for scientific investigation of the matter. Claim is now made, and government action against law violators is cited as proof, that the danger to salmon is not due so much to the appetite of eagles for this delicacy as it is to the habit of fishermen of killing spawning salmon that are needed for brood stock. The parts eaten by eagles are for the most part the bodies of dead fish which at times line the streams and are carried away by birds of prey. The United States biological survey gives the eagle a fair reputation, saying: "All things considered, the bald eagle is rather more beneficial than otherwise, since much of its food is of little or no economic value, while the good it does more than compensate for its obnoxious deeds."

The American Nature association has for some time been in a campaign for the repeal of this offending Alaska law.

If Uncle Sam is a Shylock, as some of our European debtors insist, there is this little difference: He might be willing, in lieu of his money claim, to accept assurance that the debtors would stop carving fish from each other.

Coolidge, now president by vote of the people, isn't likely to be changed because of that to a liberal spender of the people's money.

~by~ Rowell

President Coolidge enters on his first elective term under extraordinary auspices.

Chosen practically without opposition—for most Democrats, hopeless of their own candidate, welcomed his success, and the third party was a consciously futile gesture—with the country prosperous and growing more so; with no bitter domestic issues and with foreign relations smoothing; with the good will and confidence of the nation and the world—the path before him is almost too smooth.

He is to be congratulated on his good fortune and welcomed to his great responsibility. May the "Coolidge luck" continue—and the fine character and ability which has always risen to its opportunities.

We used to speculate about two-story streets. Suddenly New York arrived with three-story ones, built all wrong, with the wrong things on, about and below the ground.

Now they are planning, at least on paper, to make Pennsylvania avenue, in Washington, five stories, with airplane landings on top of that.

And even this grandiose theoretical plan still reverses reason, by keeping the light foot traffic on the firm ground, and putting the heaviest vehicles on stilts.

Bracket sidewalks, one story up, would be practical almost everywhere, and cheap. They would make a revolutionary relief of congestion.

WILL WE RECOGNIZE IT?

What will the city of the future be, within a time near enough to be seen by many who read this?

For residence, let us hope. It will be scattered so far as to obliterate the difference between city and country.

Then at least all children can live in the open. This will also mean scattered centers of retail shopping.

But doubtless there will remain congested districts, of sky-scraping business and barrack residences, into and out of which more people must move than can be carried by the present one-story and individualistic streets.

If the whole city belonged to one man, what would such a private owner do? Doubtless just what private owners of great buildings have already done.

There is no "fare" on elevators. Their cost is covered in the rent.

A city administered in the same way, with moving sidewalks and faster street carriers, with adequate tubes, to get further out, all administered to carry the traffic, is physically and financially possible.

A private owner would do it. The only question is how soon democracy can do it, too.

WE CANNOT SURVIVE CONTEMPT

The "attacks" on Congress may be "paid propaganda," as an eminent statesman recently said, but the contempt which they express is wider and older than anything propagandists could hire.

Admiral Sims told an investigating committee the other day how the navy got Guantanamo fortified.

Fearing that if the fortification proposal came up, some congressman would ask: "Where in hell is Guantanamo?" and there would be nothing doing for 10 years, the navy undertook the geographic education of Congress.

To get the name of the proposed station into the only literature congressmen read, naval maneuvers were staged in Cuban waters, and newspaper men were taken along to put the name "Guantanamo" into their stories as often as possible.

Then, when the appropriation later came up, congressmen had heard of Guantanamo, and it went through.

Failure to do the same thing with Guam accounts for its defenseless condition.

That was 20 years ago, so "now it can be told." It is a good story.

But what of the service whose members had this estimate of the intelligence of Congress? And what of the people who share that estimate?

It is not enough to demonstrate that it is untrue and unjust.

If the people continue to think that, even mistakenly, it is the beginning of the wreck of democracy.

A government may survive the hatred or the fear of its people, as many have, but not their contempt.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS
by Olive Roberts Barton.

BIMBO TAKES A RIDE

They left the city and went through miles and miles of country

When Bimbo the Clown heard that spring had come and that it was time for the circus to begin, he did a little dance of joy.

The March Hare and the Twins had hunted and hunted for him and finally they had found him in a fine big theater.

"This is finer than a circus!" said Nancy in surprise. "Would you like to leave here?"

"Nothing is finer than a circus," said Bimbo. "Sawdust is much grander than red velvet carpet, and poles and ropes are much more wonderful than gold curtains and painted walls. Oh boy! I can smell the peanuts roasting already, and hear the band going tum-tum-tetum, and hear the lions roaring, and the wagons going rumble-bumpity-bump!"

"It's time for your act," said the stage man knocking on the dressing room door where they were all talking.

"We're in a great hurry," said the March Hare, looking at his watch.

"It will only take me about twenty minutes," whispered Bimbo. "You three can stand out in the wings and watch. Then I'll go with you right away."

So Bimbo went out on the stage and somebody brought in a white horse from the other side, and then Bimbo jumped on the horse. He jumped on and jumped off and turned somersaults and stood on his head while the horse was running, and hung by his tail, the horse's tail, of course, and did so many wonderful things the Twins could scarcely get their breath.

"I never knew that clowns were so smart!" exclaimed Nick.

"Neither did I!" said Nancy.

"I thought that all they did was to make people laugh," said Nick.

"It takes smart people to make people laugh," said the March Hare solemnly. "There! That's over. Now we can be going."

Bimbo bowed himself off the stage while the people in the theater were laughing and clapping. He made so many bows that he nearly stepped on his three little visitors who were standing behind him.

"Oh, here you are!" he cried.

"Now you run along and tell the Circus Man that I'm coming on the first train."

"No need—we have magic along," said the March Hare. "You are to come with us." And what do you think! Out of his pocket he took an other pair of magic shoes like the ones the Twins wore. Bimbo put the mon without a word.

"Now hop on, all three of you," said the hare.

Bimbo had to obey—he was so surprised. He began to shrink until he was exactly the proper size—and then he was on the hare's back going madly down the street with the others.

They left the city and went through miles and miles of country.

"Oh, there's a cute little pig!" said Bimbo. "I have to have a pig to take along."

So they stopped long enough to pay the farmer for his pig and then they went on again, Nancy, Nick, Bimbo and the pig—all on the hare's back.

And after while they reached the circus where the elephants and all the animals were being spring-cleaned, and the red wagons smelled of fresh paint.

"Hello!" cried the Circus Manager. "Here you are. Hello, Bimbo. I'm glad to see you. Ready for work?"

Bimbo laughed. "I've been working hard all winter, sir. Now I'm ready for play."

Nancy, Nick and the March Hare stood by listening.

There was more work for them to do.

TELEPHONE MESSAGE FROM JOHN ALDEN PRESCOTT TO RUTH BURKE

"Hello, Walt. This is Jack Prescott.

"Oh, I'm all right. I'm trying to get word to Leslie and her telephone does not seem to work. If Ruth is there will you let me talk to her.

"All right, I'll wait.

"Ruth, this is Jack Prescott. I've just called up Leslie and find that she has instructed the person who answered the phone to say that she was not to be disturbed, not even by long distance telephones. Won't you contrive to get word to her and persuade her to talk to me?

"Oh, you have promised not to disturb her, too? Then she was not sure whether I would call her or not. Can't you break your promise, Ruth. Surely you know that I love Leslie. I'm perfectly frantic, because she will not talk to me.

"Of course, I know it is all my fault, but that does me no good now. It doesn't make anyone any happier to know they are being punished for something that they deserve. In fact, I think I could bear my punishment better if I were innocent. I'm perfectly willing to take all the blame, but I've got to have my wife and babies and have them damn quick or I'll go insane.

"Ruth, it is a desperate man who is talking to you, and I swear to you that if Leslie will not talk to me today I'll put myself where she nor no one else will talk to me again.

"You will do your best. That's a dear girl. I'll call you up in about an hour and hear what you have done.

"You say she is all ready to go. Great Scott! Then I think I will just leave it as it is until I am sure when I can go. I may be able to make it this morning.

"Yes, I know she will probably call me up, but by that time I will know definitely what I am going to do.

"Don't say anything about it until you hear from me."

For Tired Feet

The work of Mr. Mann of Anytown necessitates his walking quite a bit, and often his feet were so tired that he felt as if he would have to change jobs.

He found, however, that if he bathed his feet in lukewarm water in which a handful of salt had been thrown just before retiring at night a great relief was afforded.

The water should not be very hot. If the joints are sore a vaseline massage is good.

After feet are bathed they should be thoroughly dried between the toes. If there is a tendency there to soreness, or to the formation of white skin, sprinkle freely with bismuth and place dry absorbent cotton between the toes.

When feet burn from long standing, soak them in a basin of warm water in which two tablespoonsful of baking soda is dissolved.

This burning sensation usually is the result of too much blood in the veins of the feet.

The warm alkaline water softens the skin and opens the pores, allowing this undue quantity of blood to disperse.

Safe Fat Reduction.

Why be fat? The answer of most fat people is that constant dieting is hard, continual exercise is tiresome and exhaustive—and then, too, it might be harmful to force the weight down. That was the old fashioned idea. Today in Marmola Prescription Tablets all these difficulties are overcome. Just a pleasant little tablet after each meal and at bedtime causes fat to vanish. This modern method is easy, entails no dieting or exercising and has the added advantage of cheapness.

Get a box of these tablets and start taking them now. Within a short time you will be getting rid of fat steadily and easily without starvation diet or tiresome exercise. You will be comfortable and able to enjoy the food you like and want. Even after taking off many pounds, there will be no flabbiness or wrinkles remaining. You will feel 100 per cent better. All druggists stores the world over sell Marmola Prescription Tablets at one dollar for a box, or the Marmola Company, 448 General Motors Building, Detroit Mich., will gladly send them to you on receipt of the price.—Adv.

BAREE, SON OF KAZAN

by James Oliver Curwood

A LOVE EPIC OF THE FAR NORTH

Copyright, 1917, by Doubleday, Page & Co.

"BAREE, SON OF KAZAN," a Vitagraph Picture, With Wolf, the War Dog, is an Adaptation of This Story

SYNOPSIS

McTaggart, the factor, had gone to the cabin of Pierrot, the trapper, to claim Pierrot's daughter, Nepeese, as his bride. Nepeese led him to the brink of the chasm. He put his arms about the girl, but she, hatred flaring up in her, freed herself and pushed him over the brink and into a pool, twenty feet below. Then returning to the cabin, Nepeese fondled Baree, the wolf-dog. Her touch thrilled the young untamed animal. Under her caress his eyes closed, but at sound of her voice they shot open again.

CHAPTER XIV—Continued

"He will come here—that beast—and he will kill us," she was saying. "He will kill you because you bit him, Baree. Ugh, I wish you were bigger and stronger so that you could take off his head for me!"

She was untying the babiche from about the table-leg, and under her breath she laughed. She was not frightened. It was a tremendous adventure—and she throbbed with exultation at the thought of having beaten the man-beast in her own way. She could see him in the pool struggling and beating about like a great fish. He was just about crawling out of the chasm now—and she laughed again as she caught Baree up under her arm.

"Oh—oopi-nao—but you are heavy!" she gasped. "And yet I must carry you—because I am going to run!"

She hurried outside. Pierrot had not come, and she darted swiftly into the balsams back of the cabin, with Baree hung in the crook of her arm, like a sack filled at both ends and tied in the middle. He felt like that, too. But he still had no inclination to wriggle himself free. Nepeese ran with him until her arm ached. Then she stopped and put him down on his feet, holding to the end of the caribou-skin thong that was tied about his neck. She was prepared for any lunge he might make to escape. She expected that he would make an attempt, and for a few moments she watched him closely, while Baree, with his feet on earth once more, looked about him. And then the Willow spoke to him softly.

"You are not going to run away, Baree. Non, you are going to stay with me, and we will kill that man-beast if he dares do to me again what he did back there." She flung back the loose hair from about her flushed face, and for a moment she forgot Baree as she thought of that half-minute at the edge of the chasm. He was looking straight up at her when her glance fell on him again. "Non, you are not going to run away—you are going to follow me," she whispered. "Come."

They came at last into an open. It was a tiny meadow in the heart of the forest, not more than three or four times as big as the cabin; underfoot the grass was soft and green, and thick with flowers. Straight through the heart of this little oasis trickled a streamlet across which the Willow jumped with Baree under her arm, and on the edge of the rill was a small wigwam made of freshly cut spruce and balsam boughs. Into her diminutive mekewap the Willow thrust her head to see that things were as she had left them yesterday. Then, with a long breath of relief, she put down her four-legged burden and fastened the end of the babiche to one of the cut spruce-limbs.

Baree burrowed himself back into the wall of the wigwam, and with head alert—and eyes wide open—watched attentively what happened after this. Not a movement of the Willow escaped him. She was radiant—and happy. Her laugh, sweet and wild as a bird's trill, set Baree's heart throbbing with a desire to jump about with her among the flowers.

For a time Nepeese seemed to forget Baree. Her wild blood raced with the joy of her triumph over the Factor from Lac Bain. She saw him again, floundering about in the pool—pictured him at the cabin now, soaked and angry, demanding of mon pere where she had gone. And mon pere, with a shrug of his shoulders, was telling him that he didn't know—that probably she had run off into the forest. It did not enter her head that in tricking Bush McTaggart in that way she had played with dynamite. She did not foresee the peril that in an instant would have stamped the wild flush from her face and curdled the blood in her veins—did not guess that McTaggart had become for her a deadlier menace than ever.

There came an interruption. It was the snapping of a dry stick. Through the forest Pierrot had come with the stealth of a cat, and when they looked up, he stood at the edge of the open. Baree knew that it was not Bush McTaggart. But it was a man-beast! Instantly his body stiffened under the Willow's hand. He drew back slowly and cautiously from her lap, and as Pierrot advanced, Baree snarled. The next instant Nepeese had risen and had run to Pierrot. The look in her father's face alarmed her.

"What has happened, mon pere?" she cried.

Pierrot shrugged his shoulders.

"Nothing, ma Nepeese—except that you have roused a thousand devils in the heart of the Factor from Lac Bain, and that——"

He stopped as he saw Baree, and pointed at him.

"Last night when M'sieu the Factor caught him in a snare, he bit M'sieu's hand. M'sieu's hand is swollen twice its size, and I can see his blood turning black. It is pechipoo."

"Pechipoo!" gasped Nepeese.

She looked into Pierrot's eyes. They were dark, and filled with a sinister gleam—a flash of exultation, she thought.

"Yes, it is the blood-poison," said Pierrot. A gleam of cunning shot into his eyes as he looked over his shoulder, and nodded. "I have hidden the medicine—and told him there is no time to lose in getting back to Lac Bain. And he is afraid—that devil! He is waiting. With that blackening hand, he is afraid to start back alone—and so I go with him. And—listen, ma Nepeese. We will be away by sundown, and there is something you must know before I go."

Baree saw them there, close together in the shadows thrown by the tall spruce trees. He heard the low murmur of their voices—chiefly of Pierrot's, and at last he saw Nepeese put her two arms up around the man-beast's neck, and then Pierrot went away again into the forest.

CHAPTER XV

For a long time after Pierrot left them the Willow did not move from where she had seated herself beside Baree. It was at last the deepening shadows and a near rumble in the sky that roused her from the fear of the things Pierrot had told her. When she looked up, black clouds were massing slowly over the open space above the spruce-tops. Darkness was falling. In the whisper of the wind and the dead stillness of the thickening gloom there was the sullen brewing of storm.

Nepeese shivered and rose to her feet. For the first time Baree got up, and he stood close at her side. Above them a lightning-flash cut the clouds like a knife of fire, followed in an instant by a terrific crash of thunder. Baree shrank back as if struck a blow. He would have slunk into the shelter of the brush wall of the wigwam, but there was something about the Willow as he looked at her which gave him confidence. The thunder crashed again. But he retreated no farther. His eyes were fixed on Nepeese.

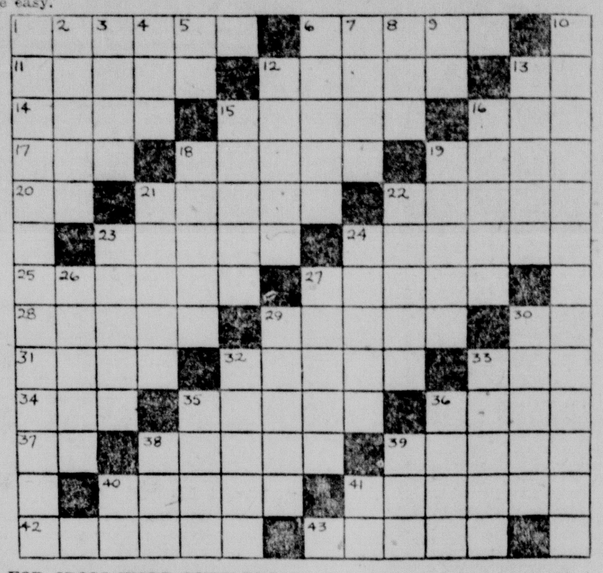

On that night, it may be, the Spirit of Storm was born in Nepeese. She loved to face it, as she was facing it now. It made her forget all things but the splendid might of nature; her half-wild soul thrilled to the crash and fire of it; often she had reached up her bare arms and laughed with joy as the deluge burst about her. Even now she might have stood there in the little open until the rain fell, if a whine from Baree had not turned her. As the first big drops struck with the dull thud of leaden bullets about them, she went with him into the balsam shelter.

Once before Baree had passed through a night of terrible storm—the night he had hidden himself under a root and saw the tree riven by lightning; but now he had company, and the warmth and soft pressure of the Willow's hand on his head and neck filled him with a strange courage. He growled softly at the crashing thunder. He wanted to snap at the lightning-flashes. Under her hand Nepeese felt the stiffening of his body, and in a moment of uncanny stillness she heard the sharp, uneasy click of his teeth. Then the rain fell.

ANSWER TO YESTERDAY'S CROSSWORD PUZZLE:

Shamrock Always Blooms On St. Patrick's Day

In the heart of every Irishman the shamrock holds a tender spot.

Dear it is to the children of Erin and in return it always blooms for them on every hill, valey and in every field on St. Patrick's morning.

There are many tales and legends told concerning this little plant and of the prickly, flowering blackthorn.

It is told that when St. Patrick came to Ireland, to preach the gospel King Laeghaire ruled at Tara. He was a stubborn adversary of the doctrines of Christianity.

Laeghaire refused to believe in the mystery of the trinity. Although he had been brought to a point where he believed the doctrines at least partly, the mystery of the trinity was an obstacle.

St. Patrick, it is told, tried often to explain the mystery to the king, but could make no progress, the pagan king obstinately refusing to believe the doctrine of three in one.

One day while preaching before Laeghaire, without apparent success, St. Patrick beheld at his feet the little shamrock plant.

Stooping down he picked a spray and carried it to the king, showing him the three leaves on one stem, yet al a part of it. And the story goes that King Laeghaire immediately embraced Christianity.

Many other legends are recalled on St. Patrick's day when the little shamrock is the greenest. There is a story that once St. Patrick was caught in a blizzard and hurrying to shelter, found himself beneath a blackthorn bush.

No sooner had he gotten under the bush than the snow melted and a multitude of beautiful blossoms covered the bush. Now despite inclement weather the blackthorn blooms on St. Patrick's morn, being one of the few bushes whose blooms precede the coming of its leaves.

The blackthorn grows all over Ireland, but is especially fond of Tipperary soil.

Perhaps the blackthorn or shillalah is often called "the Tipperary rifle" for this reason.

Such popularity must be deserved

THE "man-in-the-street," the "man-in-the-limousine"—men in all walks of life, laugh with Bud Fisher. He draws more smiles, perhaps, than any other cartoonist in America.

Depend upon it, the public recognizes the real thing—whether it's cartoons or cigarettes.

Witness the sustained popularity of Chesterfield cigarettes. Here again men have found the real thing, in better tobaccos, and in richer, milder, more satisfying taste.

Wall Street Review

By Associated Press Leased Wire

New York, March 17.—Stock prices continued to sag under the weight of a large volume of selling orders at the opening of today's market. Blocks of 5000 shares or more were common in the first few minutes. American International Corporation dropped 1½ to 13, duplicating the year's low price. Most of the standard rails and industrials yielded fractionally.

Selling pressure was directed chiefly against the specialties in the early trading. Crucibzle Steel broke 3 points in reflection of the failure of the directors to announce the dividend. Commercial Solvents A slumped 5½, Worthington Pump 2⅜, Western Pacific 2¼ and American Hide & Leather preferred nad U. S. Cast Iron Pipe 2 each. Among the many issues to yield a point or more were Maxwell Motors B, Republic Steel, Sears Roebuck and Colorado Fuel, St. Paul preferred touched another new record low at 13¼. Goreign exchange opened steady, demand sterling ruling around 4.78¾.

Erratic fluctuations marked the course of trading. After the initial outburst of selling had subsided supporting orders were distributed among recognized leaders in an effort to arrest the general decline. U. S. Cast Iron Pipe was lifted five points above last night's close and Baldwin, American Can, General Electric, were 1 to 2 points higher. Wilson preferred rallied 7 points and S. S. Kresge 10. The abrupt decline in wheat later caused a renewal of liquidation and the whole market ran off at a rapid pace. American Can and General Electric were driven down 3to 4 points and U. S. Cast Iron Pipe dipped 7 points. West Pennsylvania Power and American Car & Foundry went 3¾ and 4½ points lower. Call money renewed at 4 per cent.

To Take Alleged Murder Case to Supreme Court

By Associated Press Leased Wire

Atlanta, Ga., Mar. 17—Attorneys for F. W. McClellan, Brockton, N. Y., and Ted Coggeshall Clayton, Ill., indicted in the recent murder of W. C. Wright school principal, announced today they had taken action to place the case before the state supreme court, thus postponing the scheduled trial tomorrow.

The attorneys failed yesterday to obtain a change of venue from Putnam County. The youths are held in jail here. They have denied connection with the crime. Wright was assaulted March 4, by three youths who stole his automobile, while being given a "lift." He died four days later. The third youth is held at Athens, Georgia.

All Birth Records in Germany Smashed Today

By Associated Press Leased Wire

Lessau, Germany, Mar. 17—All records for Germany were topped here today when Frau Becker, wife of a manual laborer, bore her twenty-seventh child, a healthy boy. Eleven of the other boys and girls still are living, among them several pairs of twins.

On the same night of the arrival of the latest addition to the family, her eldest married sister, Anna, gave birth to twin girls.

Frau Becker is 47 years old and her husband 48.

Anti-American Feeling in Peru Said to be Growing

By Associated Press Leased Wire

Washington, Mar. 17—Although the Washington government maintained complete silence today on the recent demonstration in Peru against the arbitral award made by the President Coolidge of the Tacna-Arica controversy, it was learned from other sources that these anti-American demonstrations were of widespread and serious nature, and that the Peruvian ambassador may withdraw from Washington as a personal protest.

Pimples

You will be startled how quickly and thoroughly you can stop skin eruptions and beautify your complexion with S.S.S.

PIMPLES are the first thing one notices in another person's face. It is too often cruel in its misjudgment. It judges from what it sees on the outside. Pimples are easy to get rid of. More red-cells! That is what you need when you see pimples staring at you in the mirror. Red-cells mean clear, pure, rich blood. They mean clear, ruddy, lovable complexions. They mean nerve power, because all your nerves are fed by your blood. They mean freedom forever from pimples, from blackhead pest, from boils, from eczema and skin eruptions; from that tired, exhausted, run-down feeling. Red-blood-cells are the most important thing in the world to each of us. S.S.S. will aid Nature in building them for you! S.S.S. has been known since 1826 as one of the greatest blood-builders, blood-cleansers and system strengtheners ever produced. Start taking S.S.S. today. Its medicinal ingredients are purely vegetable.

S. S. S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

INOCULATION INSTRUCTION ALSO CHARGED

the exception of an $8,000 annuity to Miss Isabelle Pope, McClintock's fiance, who waited at his death bed with a marriage license, was scheduled for hearing today.

Indictment Prepared

An indictment containing fifteen counts charging Shepherd with killing his foster son was drawn up by Assistant Prosecutor Marshall for submission for a vote of the grand jury today.

Faiman, who earlier yesterday admitted Shepherd had offered him $20,000 to "keep his mouth shut" amplified last night, the details of the relations he said he had with Shepherd.

He said after Shepherd had taken a two weeks course in his school and obtained the germs in November 1923, he showed him how to care for them and keep them alive in a hermitically sealed bottle. They frequently met in downtown hotels, he asserted, and he would explain to Shepherd how a body might be inoculated with the germs.

"It was the understanding that Shepherd was to wait until young McClintock had signed a will leaving the money to Shepherd and then at a favorable opportunity he was to be given the germs.

"Doses Were Repeated"

"The first dose of germs was given McClintock in a glass of cold water. After that doses were repeated and his condition aggravated.

"A week after McClintock became ill, Shepherd and myself met and he asked me what to do. I told him to administer a cathartic to the youth when the latter's stomach was empty. I explained that it would penetrate the intestines and cause almost certain death. At the time Shepherd asked me for advice as to how he could make the fever more deadly, McClintock was very ill."

In Shepherd's statement he picturured himself as standing "on the side lines watching men and women weave together testimony with which others hope to brand me as a murderer" and "to send an innocent man to prison so that something which I fearfully fell into his hands might be snatched away."

Shepherd Claims Defense

"Suppose I did study germs," the statement continued. "I had a perfect right as a practicing attorney to do anything I wished. But I did not. I wouldn't know what to do with typhoid germs if I had them and never had any in my possession, furthermore.

"All there is against me is a dead body and a motive. These two facts, supported by a lot of babble, gossip and suspicion, are intended to break me down. I have a defense, if it is necessary to produce one, to clear myself in a moment before any jury of fair-minded citizens."

IS "DIPLOMA MILL"

By Associated Press Leased Wire

Chicago, March 17.—The National University of Sciences here, the head of which, Charles C. Maiman, has told State's Attorneys that he gave Wilima D. Shepherd typhoid germs to administer to William D. McClintock, "millionaire orphan" was charged by J. W. Folmer, inspector of the state department of education, with being a "diploma mill."

It was once a recognized second class school and was chartered in 1911, but had become bangrupt. Faiman, who was said to be a graduate of the University of Missouri and also had attended the University of Minnesota, was said to have acquired the institution in an auction two years ago.

According to Follmer many of its courses were mail order courses.

Listed on its staff were fifteen faculty members, all with various degrees.

Its students, Follmer said, were either gullible country people or quacks who wanted numerous diplomas to hang on their walls to impress patrons.

NO RECORD AT U. OF M.

By Associated Press Leased Wire

Columbia, Mo., March 17.—University of Missouri records do not show that Charles C. Fainman of Chicago witness in the investigation of the death of William N. McClintock, was ever a student of that institution, according to R. L. Hill, alumni recorder.

Dixon Woman's Club Meeting

The Dixon Woman's Club met Saturday afternoon at the Christian church with a very good attendance. The program was in charge of the Home Economics department with Mrs. Lewis, chairman.

Miss Ackert opened the program with two piano numbers, Mozart's Sonata, No. 16 and Chopin's Waltz in E Flat, both being greatly enjoyed.

Mrs. Bowers gave the lecture on Period Furniture and Mr. Bowers had charge of the lantern slides illustrating it. This lecture with the pictures was most interesting to everyone. It depicted many different periods of furniture—early Italian and Spanish, Tudor and Elizabethean, Jacobean, William and Mary and Queen Anne, Georgian and Adams and early and later Colonial. Walnut was used almost exclusively for furniture in the early days, except during the Georgian period when mahogany was most popular.

It is scarcely possible to consider decoration and furnishings apart from architecture, so closely related are they, that they may be said to be merely different phases of the same subject.

The hostesses, Mesdames Petersberger, Lewis, Morris, Stauffer, McGinnis, Suter, Edwards and Sinclair served delicious refreshments and a social hour was enjoyed.

CONCERT BY RADIO SUNDAY AT THEATRE—

The sacred concert broadcasted from the Dixon theatre Sunday afternoon by talent from Dixon and vicinity, under the direction of Mrs. Maude Ames Goodsell was much enjoyed.

Russell Mason gave a splendid flute obligato, accompanying Mrs. Lois Lord Reedy in a solo.

REMOVED FROM HOSPITAL

The Well-Dressed Man

By BEAUNASH

Correct Clothes To Meet The Obligation Of Every Occasion

Foot-Notes Of Fashion

Style, if one may be pardoned the flippancy, reminds you of sea-sickness in that one thing brings up another. Now-a-days, shirts influence cravats; handkerchiefs influence hosiery; suits influence cravats and so on. Correct dress is no longer a disconnected jumble of articles picked by guesswork. Correct dress is teamwork. Like man, it must have a head to it; a body and arms and legs that act in unison, or it has neither movement nor life. Formerly, a man fared forth to buy a suit or a scarf or something else, quite without a thought of the other articles which helped to compose the ensemble of his turnout. Hence, gray hats were worn with brown suits, and tan shoes were worn with gray suits, and any old gloves were worn with any old suit, and when the odd man with a sense of color matched his handkerchief to his cravat we called him a dude, which was a case of the envying sneering at the envied.

Dude is a word which has virtually gone out of the present-day vocabulary, because, as Thackeray said, vanity is often the unseen spur. Sly moderns have sugared the pill by terming eagerness for the good opinion of others self-respect. However, the cause is of no consequence, but the effect is important. If smartness of appearance and fastidiousness of person constitute a dude in the old significance of the word, then every well-dressed man is one.

Bolder effects in shirts, cravats and handkerchiefs and lighter colors in hats, suits and top coats have introduced more character and sprightliness into half-hose. Again, the now almost general practice of wearing low-cut shoes which make a time exposure, instead of a snap-shot, of one's angles, leads us to select colors and patterns in socks with almost the same care that we devote to scarfs, mufflers or handkerchiefs and with the same idea of harmony or contrast.

The two styles sketched here are typical of the vivid treatments in favor this season alike in silk, lisle, silk-and-wool and wool hosiery—bright stripes and diamond, dice, mosaic or Jacquard designs in dark colors upon light grounds. For dancing to accompany the Tuxedo jacket many men are partial now to wool socks, because they are more absorbent than either silk or lisle. These come in light, medium or heavy weights and in black or Oxford gray. Then, there is the sheer, ribbed black silk sock, plain or with open clocks, that hugs the ankle.

IN NEW YORK

New York—See sawing up and down Broadway I saw A. Hamilton Gibbs, author of "Soundings," just over from England and hunting for quarters in Greenwich Village. He's a brother of Sir Philip Gibbs and Cosmo Hamilton..... Saw Tim Murphy, back on Broadway after a long absence. Remembered here for "The Texas Steer," which was written especially for him..... Saw David Davidovitch Burliuk who has 40 fancy waistcoats and a fancy earring to match each..... Saw Theodore Dreiser looking a bit under the weather..... Saw Neysa McMein, proud mother and noted artist..... Saw Sidney Blackmer, the actor, who has the softest voice of any man on Broadway..... Saw Eugene Brewster, the magazine publisher, resplendant in a green suit with white stripes..... Saw Rudolf Friml just back from California and ready to write more tunes for the musical shows and phonographs..... Saw Carl Van Doran, the author, who has a haircut like no other man except his brother, Mark..... Saw young Mr. Crane who draws "Washington Tubbs," the comic strip, and a very quiet, modest youth he is, as are most of the fellows who create the roistering figures of the "funnies" ..... Saw Olaf Fonss, here on commission of the king of Denmark to study stage and screen for his government. He's another of these fellows who keeps familiarity at a distance by wearing a monocle..... Seeing open street cars, cops chasing kids off park grass, straw hats in display windows, Coney Island subways jammed on Sunday, girls jumping rope, boys playing marbles, and I know spring has come, tra la!

The girl who made the first draped turban hat, one of those little affairs put together by wrapping one piece of cloth around a frame, is still working in the millinery department of a Fifth Avenue department store. Many men became wealthy making those hats, but the girl who originated the idea got nothing.

* * *

You can still see a bit of Old New York a step or two off Fifth Avenue in East Thirty-fourth street. Several old frame buildings of the architecture of 1870 stand there. A passage leads to a court in the rear where several scraggly trees grow. The first floors are occupied by stores and the upper floors are occupied as apartments but have no modern conveniences. I saw an old-fashioned oil lamp burning in a window the other night. Plans have already been made to erect a modern office building on the site. If the present rate of growth of commerce in Manhattan continues there will be no residential section below Central Park 25 years hence.

—JAMES W. DEAN.

New York—The Man With the Earring—I saw him first at a performance of the Moscow Art Theater. It was an earring of a mosaic design with red predominating.

"Why does he wear it?" I asked my companion. "Why doesn't he wear one on each ear?"

"Oh, I suppose he has a title and the earring is the mark of his title," my companion answered. "Look how gracefully he kisses the hand of the lady who has just come in!"

Next I saw him in a box at a recital. This time he wore a gold earring and a gold vest.

At the time this is written your correspondent has a terrific neuralgia in the head, but please don't think the man with a gold earring and gold vest is a phantom born of pain.

Indeed, this man has 40 of the most distinctive vests in town. Furthermore, he has an earring for each of those 40 vests.

This man is David Davidovitch Burliuk belong to the futuristic afford those vests, nevertheless, because he was born of wealthy parents. That was 42 years ago in Khartov. He is half Cassock and half Tatar. He wears the earring in honor of his Cossack ancestry and the fancy vest in honor of his Tatar ancestors.

Burliuk belongs to the futuristic school. He paints a horse half orange and half blue, the orange standing for vivacity, the blue for energy. His poetry contains no words, only sounds, for it is "international poetry."

He came to this country two years ago and in that time has sold 70 paintings, besides doing the stage sets for plays given by wealthy Long Islanders.

He did not have such success when he began painting in Russia. He was one of the first disciples of the hibits on the straredwit.lhHT... qLI new school and had to hold his exhibits on the streets. He even went down into the coal mines to acquaint laborers with his art.

He left Russia, going to Siberia, Mongolia and Japan. He held an exhibit of his paintings on the peak of Zujil, 15,000 feet above sea level.

Now that he has found a market for his paintings and an appreciation for his strange art he intends to remain in America.

And if The Man With the Earring puts into practice his own pet theory he will leave an everlasting mark in American architecture.

He believes the outer walls of buildings should be decorated with immense paintings and foundations and ledges with quotations of literary masters.

—JAMES W. DEAN.

STEPHEN COLNE, former British cabinet minister who persuades them that their attempt would be fruitless.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"I cannot expect more of you," replied the baronet. "Wait a minute, Grimes," he added as the velveteen coated figure turned to the door "You know that the thing dropped by that cursed bird yesterday put a me under a cloud—that people are talking?"

"I don't pay attention to chatter, sir. There are plenty fools in Beechwood village."

"And in Beechwood Grange," sneered Sir Dudley. "See here, Grimes, you must have known my cousin George well. What was the row between him and the old man?"

"I couldn't say, sir. It was kept very close," replied the head keeper stolidly, though a reminiscent gleam in his sombre eyes belied total ignorance.

"George was a bit of a spark with the girls, wasn't he?" pursued Sir Dudley. "Come, man! you can speak freely to me without any fear that your name will be dragged in. It will make a lot of difference if I can get to the bottom of that quarrel. I have always thought that there was a woman at the bottom of it."

"Neither Sir Philip nor Mr. George took me into confidence, sir. Was it likely, when even Miss Kathleen was kept in the dark?"

With an impatient gesture Glenister waved his servant away, and his gaze after the receding velveteen back was as black as thunder.

"It's a lonely furrow I've got to plough," he muttered, as he lighted a cigar and flung himself into a chair.

Presently there came a tap at the door, and Mrs. Coningsby floated in. The pretty lady, hovering ever on the fringe of "society" without being of it, was a relic of Sir Dudley Glenister's stock broking days. Culled from the "Gaiety" chorus and espoused by his former partner, she had soon plunged into the joys of opulent widowhood, spiteful tongues alleging that she had killed her husband by setting him a pace he could not stand. What her little game was now was a bit of a mystery, but the same spiteful tongues credited her with a desire to share her present host's title.

"Got a head, old boy?" was her elegant greeting. "I am sure I don't wonder. That horrid crow was a nasty set-back, eh? Pals must stick together when the red light shines."

"You are a good little soul, Ivy, but you are all wrong if you think that I did my cousin in," Sir Dudley looked askance at his fair guest.

"Oh, I will take your word for that," Mrs. Coningsby laughed her reply. "And there is another pointer I can give you without waiting for developments. It is as well that you should distinguish your enemies from your friends. Your cousin Kathleen and Captain Slater followed you when you left the house last night."

The owner of the Grange shook off his apathy. "I was aware that they had followed me, and I had the satisfaction of locking them out," he said. "You would do me a real service if you could tell me who let them in."

But Mrs. Coningsby shook her head. "I wish I could tell you, but I only marked them down when they reached the landing on their return," she replied. "As to who admitted them to the house I have no idea at all. What about Doctor Melville?"

"No, it wasn't Melville," replied Sir Dudley. "He has discussed the position with me, and he looks upon my fair cousin's attitude towards me with the amusement that might be expected of him. They either bribed one of the servants or they were artful enough to leave open some other means of entry in addition to the gunroom door. Kathleen is as thick as thieves with old Hinkley, the butler, and with several other of the old retainers."

Mrs. Coningsby pursed her red lips in reflection. "It's beyond me, except that there's underhand work somewhere," she said. "Now I must run away and be sweet to my fellow guests."

The company at Beechwood Grange needed someone to be "sweet" to them that day, for the social atmosphere was charged with electricity. Young Frank Glenister was the only member of the party who openly enjoyed the situation, but he joined the search at the outset and was not available for cheering up purposes. After an hour's seclusion in the library Sir Dudley mastered his indecision and started off to overtake the gang of underkeepers and laborers who were "drawing" the estate with the ardor of a pack of hounds.

Kathleen and Norman played a little tennis and then the girl, finding the suspense intolerable, ordained a walk into the village.

The hours dragged slowly on till the guests assembled for afternoon tea, which was served in the great paneled entrance hall. Lady Marrables was babbling to a bored audience about a bazaar she had opened and Hinkley and a footman were handing round the trays, when the telephone bell rang sharply.

Kathleen jumped up. Running across the hall, she darted into the telephone closet just inside the front door. In something under two minutes the girl was out again, white as a snow-drift.

"It was Grimes, ringing up from the keeper's lodge," she announced. "A body has been found in a chalk pit on Bare Acre Down near the high road. It is quite unrecognizable and there is nothing on it by which it can be identified, but the second finger of the left hand is missing."

CHAPTER VI

Detective-Inspector Wragge

THE Right Honorable Stephen Colne was a bachelor, and when staying at his country seat he played second fiddle to the austere, middle-aged maiden sister whom he had installed as chatelaine.

But though he gave his sister a free hand in the ordering of his household, there was one reservation which she did not dare to transgress. His study was an inner shrine which even the grim spinster was forbidden to invade without invitation.

It was here that Mr. Stephen Colne was sitting on the day after the inquest on the unidentified human remains found in the chalk pit on Bare Acre Down. He was impatiently turning over some papers that had reached him by the morning post, but his glance strayed frequently to one of the windows giving on the drive. His pale intellectual face was set rigidly, but a gleam came into his tired eyes as his car rushed up the avenue and stopped under the Georgian portico.

The man who descended and approached the front door wore the black garments and conventional hard felt hat of an Anglican clergyman. A moment later Mr. Colne's butler announced him as "The Reverend Mr. Branson," though Mr. Colne had quite another name for the visitor when the butler had gone his ways.

"Well, Inspector Wragge," he said, shaking hands with an air of condescension, "the commissioner made no difficulty about assigning you to the case, I presume?"

"None whatever, sir," was the reply.

James Wragge was one of the most formidable detective officers attached to New Scotland Yard. In what likeness his Creator had fashioned him probably no living being but his wife knew, so versatile were his assumptions of types and characters. It was a popular belief at "The Yard" that Jem Wragge wore some sort of a disguise in the privacy of his room at headquarters.

Mr. Colne allowed the latent dryness in the inspector's reply to pass unheeded.

Mr. Wragge selected a convenient chair and sat down opposite his host.

"You will have gathered the salient features of the case from the London papers," Mr. Colne resumed. "There is no doubt in my mind that Sir Dudley Glenister faked the evidence of his cousin George's death in America, after inveigling him back to England and killing him within a mile or two of his home. That is what you have set out to prove."

The inspector had produced a memorandum book—a dainty thing of russia leather with gilt-edged leaves.

"I have already laid a train, sir," he said, glancing at a nearly blank page. "I have cabled the American police to look up the death of the man buried as George Glenister at Lone Wolf City, Montana, and accepted by our courts as establishing the present baronet's right of succession. I only had an hour at my disposal before catching the train, but I ascertained that Sir Dudley was not out of England within a year of Sir Philip Glenister's death. If he procured the faking of the American evidence he must therefore have employed a delegate who proceeded to the spot. In a few days I ought to be able to lay my hands on his emissary."

Mr. Stephen Colne nodded approval. "A judicious start," he said. "Incidentally, Sir Dudley has ordered all his guests but Doctor Melville to leave the Grange.

Inspector Wragge looked up sharply.

ATTENTION TO AERIAL MEANS BETTER SERVICE

Too Much Attention to Construction Cannot be Given Them

Chicago—Aerials and aerial construction, while a subject often discussed but more often passed by with the belief that almost any kind of an antenna will pick up radio signals, should be given as close attention as the radio fan pays to the building of his receiver.

That the fan, both the one who buys his receiver assembled and the fan who does the assembling himself, is ignoring his pickup system, at least in Chicago, was evidenced by a recent observation of aerials. This observation showed such a hodge podge of antennae that the belief was expressed that poor aerial construction had prevented many long distance records.

"Too much attention cannot be paid to the aerial," one of the observers declared. "A trip through the Chicago residential section, which probably has as many if not more aerials per roof than any other city, will only bear out this assertion. Ignoring the aerial means the ignoring of many stations that could otherwise be received not only on nights when local stations are silent but when they are transmitting.

"There are a number of rules to be followed in aerial construction that no fan should overlook. These are:

"The wire to be used should be no smaller than No. 14, and should be at least 100 feet long with a leadin as short as possible.

"This wire should be raised as high above the roof as possible, with well supported masts and should be swung at right angles to any other aerials on the same roof.

"The best insulators should be used.

"The leadin should be kept as far away from the building as possible, at least a foot, and should be close to the wall only at the point of entrance to the building.

"The principal lack, in Chicago at least seems to be the inattention to the supporting masts. Many aerials may be seen dangling in the air with a swing of a foot or more. Such a swing will cause a detuning effect in the receiver, making it difficult to hold long distant stations. In addition this swing tends to put an extra strain on the supports and in the end can mean only the collapse of the aerial.

"A little care in the erection of the supports will remove any danger of a lack of reception due to a grounded aerial which has fallen to a wet or snow-covered roof.

"Besides all of this attention, a watchful eye should be kept on the aerial so that any defect that develops can be remedied before it becomes worse. Then, too, the wire should be replaced at least once a year, because of corrosion."

Opinion of Ashtonite Quoted by WLS Station

G. C. Salzman of Ashton is one of the radio enthusiasts in this vicinity whose opinion was quoted in a recent digest compiled by the farm and market editor of WLS, Chicago.

"How Does Your Seed Corn Germinate?" was the subject of the discussion which interested farmers in all parts of the country. Mr. Salzman gave his result of corn testing as follows:

"I have a 400 ear tester which I have filled twice, taking 4 kernels from each ear. Out of the 800 ears, 616 ears grew all 4 kernels, 129 ears grew 3 kernels with one dead which I kept in case of replanting, and 43 ears were all dead and unfit for seed."

Coughs Always Dangerous—Quick Way to Stop Them

Chronic coughs and chest colds often lead to more serious trouble. Not only is the infection itself dangerous, but the continual coughing spells day and night so weaken your entire system that you can no longer fight off disease.

So stop a cough the quickest you can. To do this there is nothing better than that old-time tried and proved remedy—Dr. Bell's Pine-Tar Honey. Doctors say there is nothing like pine-tar extract to quickly loosen and remove the phlegm and congestion which are the direct cause of the cough, while the honey both gives a pleasant taste and helps soothe irritation. The quick relief to the stubbornest cough often seems almost magical.

But be sure you get the genuine Dr. Bell's Pine-Tar Honey, and no substitute. Dr. Bell's is the original pine-tar honey and has been known for over a quarter of a century as the best. It is scientifically compounded of just the right proportions of pine-tar, honey and other quick-acting, healing ingredients which the best doctors have found to aid in quick relief. Contains no opiates or other harmful drugs, so can be given even to young children. Fine for spasmodic croup. If you want the best, a medicine that often relieves the severest cough overnight, make sure you get Dr. Bell's. Only 30c at all good druggists.

NOW DOES ALL HER WORK

Has No Backache, No Bad Feelings Because Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Drove Her Illness Away

Milwaukee, Wisconsin.—"I was in a badly run-down condition and I would get weak spells and terrible headaches. I felt so badly last year that I could not do any housecleaning. The minute I would lift or stoop it seemed as if I was going to fall to pieces. I told a neighbor how I felt, and she said that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was surely the right thing for me. I took four bottles then and in the fall of the year I took three. I had been treated by a doctor but he gave me an iron tonic and that did not help me. It seemed that the tonic did not have in it what the Vegetable Compound did. That gave me the strength and ambition I needed and I have gained in weight. This year before I started to clean house I got four bottles of the Vegetable Compound and am taking it right along. I tell all my friends about it and how much good it does me. They can notice it because I have gained in weight. I weigh 118 now and do all my work myself again."—Mrs. EMIL O.
